

modest by the Chicago police, and so you are liable to arrest if you try to wear it on the long stretch of beach that lies between the most censored city in the U. S. and Lake Michigan.

These new bathing suits for matron and little maid are coming, as they are both proper and comfortable for the woman who swims. The newest ones are made of heavy black silk.

DEATH OF BEAUTIFUL GIRL PUZZLES POLICE

Baltimore, Md., June 13.—Whether Ella G. Winter, young, good-looking and popular, was murdered or killed herself because she believed the man to whom she had given her entire affections had tired of her may never be solved. The authorities admit they are groping in the dark.

D. Meredith Reese, Jr., wealth lawyer, clubman and expert yachtsman, "the man in the case," suggests that the girl drowned herself. In the same breath he insists that he "never had any intention" of wedding the girl.

The county authorities openly charge the girl was murdered. They assert that Reese has not been frank with them; that he knows much that might aid them in solving the mystery. But up to the present no charge of complicity in the alleged crime has been made against Reese.

He is free to go and come as he pleases. He indignantly denies any knowledge whatever regarding the manner in which the young stenographer met death.

The body of the girl was found floating in Curtis Bay early last Monday. The Thursday night before she met Reese at a boat float and accompanied him in a launch to a shore resort. Peter Bell, bartender at this place, saw the couple depart.

Reese says he landed the girl at a float, from which she planned to board a car for home shortly afterward. Lee Miller, boat attendant at this particular float, says the girl did not land there that night.

Her hat was found far to the northwest of where the body was picked up. It is admitted it could not have floated there.

But neither Reese nor those who cling to the suicide theory clear up the hat mystery or explain why it was that Miller, the boat attendant, did not see the girl brought ashore by Reese.

SOCIALIST PRESS PICNIC

Charles H. Moyer, president of the Western Federation of Miners, will speak at the Socialist press picnic tomorrow afternoon at Riverview. John H. Walker, president of the Illinois Federation of Labor; Seymour Stedman, member of the Illinois Legislature; William A. Cunneen and N. D. Cochran, editor of The Day Book, are other speakers announced. Frank M. Ryan, ironworkers' international president, will be unable to appear.

James Larsen, secretary of the party organization in Cook County, predicts an attendance of 30,000.

HOYNE-M'CORMICK MIXUP

State's Attorney Hoyne yesterday declined to give A. A. McCormick, head of the County Board, the names of the old women who told such shocking stories about their treatment at the Oak Forest Infirmary.

Hoyne said the issuance of the names at this time would injure his case. The Oak Forest committee, of which Commissioner Harris is chairman, charged McCormick with trying to block an investigation.

DAMAGE SUIT ON M'CORMICK

The praecipe for a $50,000 damage suit has been filed in the Circuit Court against A. A. McCormick, superintendent of the County Hospital; Wm. O. Chapman, warden; Chas. Nehls, undertaker, and the Chicago Undertakers' Assn. by Mrs. Sarah Alward. The declaration charges that they delayed her daughter's funeral by arguing which undertaker should get the body
